

Subsetting Vectors

Raphael Carvalho

20/05/2019

Subsetting Vectors

The way you tell R that you want to select some particular elements (i.e. a ‘subset’) from a vector is by placing an ‘index vector’ in square brackets immediately following the name of the vector. For a simple example, try `x[1:10]` to view the first ten elements of `x`.